This weekend camp is a valuable opportunity for couples to learn how to build and improve their relationships in daily life through love-based communication skills in a positive manner. Through this opportunity, couples can have a private space to share each other's feelings, hopes, fears, happiness and frustrations, and talk in a positive and sincere attitude to make their marriage happier. Therefore, the talk is not a place for retreat and problem solving, but is specially designed for couples who are willing to make their marriage life more perfect, whether they have just got married or have been married for many years. In the weekend camp, each participating couple only needs to focus on sharing, discussing and talking with their partner alone, and there is no need to share with others during the entire activity. Although this Camp is formed and originated from Catholicism, people of other religions or no religion are also welcome to participate.
